Positive Behavior Support

This training gives early childhood educators a clear, practical understanding of positive behavior supports as a proactive, relationship-centered approach to guiding young children's social-emotional development. Grounded in the evidence-based practices of Prevent-Teach-Reinforce for Young Children (PTRYC) and the Pyramid Model, the session emphasizes how intentionally supporting positive behaviors reduces the likelihood of challenging behaviors before they occur. Educators will explore how nurturing relationships, high-quality environments, and explicit teaching of social-emotional skills form the foundation of a preventative system.
